ELECTION DAY OPENED INAUGURALLY.

The clouds at dawn were sultry and dark and the rain pelted with mournful sound upon the roof-tops and pavements.

Yet in this there was an omen.

Nature was blessed, and by the grand turn-out of republicans, and their friends, a blessing has come to the honest people of Grand Rapids, who will this morning, with glad voices and contented hopes, welcome the news that the reins of municipal government will in a short month be guarded by republicans and honest men.

The vote, though not full, was cast by men who had something at stake, and who had the interests of the city at heart.

At all of the precincts quiet prevailed.

There was no incident, no circumstance out of the ordinary. It was also evident somewhat awkwardly in November, worked very smoothly and satisfactorily yesterday. Ande from its virtue in insuring absolute a secret ballot, it was also observed at all precincts, that the gang, such as peddlers, and buttonholers, have ceased to take the interest in the polls they were wont to do. Rumors of the result were prevalent in the evening long before it was reliably obtained. In the court rooms and in the hotels large crowds of people congregated anxious for the news. Strange to say their conversation in most every instance showed a feeling that the republicans would win. As the news came to THE HERALD it was flashed upon a canvas upon the Foster building, and soon Campau place was filled with an immense crowd who lustily cheered the enterprise of THE SIGNAL, as they did likewise hail with delight the news which the figures told them.

In all of these gatherings was felt the pulse of the people of Grand Rapids—which was democracy est mort, vive republicans! During the day the various candidates visited the several polling places and cheered their supporters with expressions of confidence, but with the democrats these were misspent.
